D 8.4. Web forum

We have set up a Web Forum to facilitate exchange of information between the team members and other scientists, engineers, industry representatives and the public.

The forum is at:
http://www.euro-cares.eu/forum/

The software we have chosen is a halfway house between a standard forum and a more 'live chat' experience. This enables us to respond quickly to any questions. In order to participate in the forum, users need to sign up (this is very straightforward) and give their name, so we can monitor how many users we have and who they are.

The forum has a general discussion section, and a work packages section where more specific questions and answers can be posted.

Below is a screen shot of the forum.